LEARNING TO SHOOT.

A Simple Rifle Target and the Way to Practice.

The first moving target that I would recommend is one that is simplicity itself and yet, with the assistance of a gentle sloping hill and a friend to take turns with you, will be of great value and benefit. One of the most successful deer hunters I know trained this way, and you will readily see the good points of this practice on trial of it. Secure half a dozen barrel heads for "Has she now?" cried Terry, a note your partner. Have him take a position at the top of the hill and roll these "'Tis not so poinful whin I sit still," heads down the slope diagonally. At first it will be best to select a fairly smooth slope and have the targets roll-"I'll tell ye the best way out," said ed down at a medium rate.
